"Dry rice in- guilt," Cooper said, as a ser to the scientific fact ur salivary glands are in- ed by our emotions. In fe said, the involuntary ent of the big toe was to convince the Indians man was guilty. Now some ions have a special chair, said, with electrical wir- record involuntary movement of the body. The ancient Hindus, he said, told their suspects that inside a tent was a "sacred ass." Each suspect was to pull the tail of the ass — and if it braved, the prisoner would be judged guilty. Upon conclusion of the test, all prisoners' hands were examined because the ass's tail had been liberally covered with black powder.) "Only the guilty man's hands would be clean," Cooper said, "since he, alone, would be fearful of hearing the ass bray."

Cooper cited Galileo's work in measuring pulse rate, Belucci's discovery of changes in respiratory rate in 1915 and other scientists' work in the historic development of the polygraph.

Cooper told the club that suspects take polygraph tests voluntarily, and that extensive preparations are made so that the persons taking th e tests will know what is coming.

Cooper said that results in Appomattox have been encouraging, that in the 980 cases in which the tests were used, only two errors are known, and both of these favored defendants, giving indications that the persons were "innocent" though they later pronounced guilty by courts.

Cooper said that there is current legislation in some states against the use of the polygraph. He asked Liens to be on the lookout for any legislation against the use of these machines in Virginia—that they are exceedingly useful both in criminal investigation and in industry, especially those involving the production of extremely high priced goods.

The Investigator related details of several cases in which polygraph tests were used. He and Investigator R. P. Ratney are the only polygraph operators at Third District headquarters, Appomattox.

TEE OFF ON TROUT

The top of a red fluorescent plastic golf tee makes a good trout bait. Underwater looks just like a salmon egg. To a trout, that is.
